UniCredit – together with ABC accelerator – launched the first UniCredit Hackathon CEE, a global competition that took place in Ljubljana, Slovenia, on 2nd and 3rd September 2017.

Developers, representatives of Fintech Start-ups and Software Companies, “out of the box” thinkers, as well as employees of UniCredit applied to the initiative and gathered in 12 international teams. Selected participants came from Albania, Austria, Bosnia, Bulgaria, Croatia, Czech Republic, Hungary, Italy, Poland, Romania, Russia, Serbia, Slovenia, Switzerland, Turkey, and even Japan.

Leveraging on the new PSD2 regulation, by which all EU financial institutions will have to provide third parties direct access to their customers’ accounts, the Hackathon challenge was: “How client account information can be used to improve customer experience and create value both for our customers and the bank”. Participants would develop , for example, apps and platforms to analyse client data, and while doing that provide better customer experience.

Sergio Marino, Board Member, UniCredit Banka Slovenija d.d. said: “Many great ideas connected to the PSD2 challenge were presented by the groups on the last day of the Hackathon; some already highly developed, others at a starting point. Having a consistent business case, a working demo, the presentation itself and the creativeness of the idea were the main items reviewed when selecting the winners. Although UniCredit Hackathon CEE is over, it does not actually end up here. The best teams will present their creative idea to the CEE Division top management and could be part of our teams when implementing the solution.”

Francesco Vercesi, Head of Agile for CEE at UniCredit Group, added: “The UniCredit Hackathon CEE gave us the opportunity to see what people coming from different backgrounds can do together, developing ideas that can be put in practice later. At UniCredit, we believe in innovation and in this context we adopted an Agile framework that promotes a new way of working and better responds to a fast-changing environment. This approach, whereby various teams collaborate to deliver early and repeatedly, helped frame the UniCredit Hackathon CEE itself. We are proud today of the outcome delivered, and congratulate the winning teams.
